Praxis Engineering's Pie in the Face Contest Raises $4,200 for the Leukemia and Lymphoma Society

(Annapolis Junction, MD) September 6, 2011 -- Praxis Engineering, a leading provider of software development and system engineering solutions to the Federal Government, raised $4,200 for the Leukemia and Lymphoma Society (LLS) at its annual picnic.

As part of a Pie in the Face contest, Praxis employees contributed personal donations toward their favorite managers in the weeks leading up to the company's annual picnic. At the picnic, the top three managers with the most money to their name, as well as the last place manager, were presented with a pie in the face. To keep the fun going, Praxis announced that it would match every donation dollar-for-dollar if the employees who organized the contest also received pies in the face, which they did.

"We are thrilled that the contest not only raised a good deal of money but more importantly it also raised LLS's awareness among our employees," stated Bill Dunahoo, President of Praxis Engineering. Bill added, "We are so proud of the generosity and caring of our employees and their desire to give back to the community."

Jon Rosa, Executive Director of The Leukemia & Lymphoma Society (LLS), Maryland Chapter, added: "It is terrific how Praxis Engineering is very involved in helping their local community. The Praxis Management Team is to be commended for their benevolent spirit and our sincere thanks goes out to them for participating in this contest to benefit LLS. This meaningful gift will help local patients through their blood cancer journey."
